

(57) Abstract

An RF testing method and arrangement of an electronic device utilize sensors for measuring the electronic device under test in conjunction with production of the electronic devices. A comparator performs a comparison between measurement signals and corresponding reference signals from a reference supply and a decision unit determines defectiveness of the electronic device based on the comparison.

(Figure 3)